

Thierry Emonet
Yale University New Haven
USA

Behavioral variability and phenotypic diversity in cellular migration

I will discuss our theoretical and experimental efforts to uncover the functional role of molecular noise in cellular migration. I will distinguish between noise that gives rise to behavioral variability of an individual cell over time and noise that give rise to cell-to-cell variability in motility.